'WHERE PASSION MEETS PERFORMANCE'

Q & A

EMILY:

"I play with good lady-friends who always putt better than I do. Thinking that I can 'See The Line' to the bottom of the cup, I step up to the ball and then, for some reason, I've lost the line. Makes me feel a little unstable! I need your reliable help."

ANSWER: 'Reading Greens' is an art form that must be practised constantly. If you don't use it you will lose it. You will soon feel, "Is what I think I see, really the line?"

When one 'Sees & Feel The Line', one must promptly trust it and play it.

Visualize this line carefully during your 'PSR'. Retain it in your 'Mind's Eye' so that you can recall it during your actual swinging of the putter 'Down the Line Squarely to the Target'. (see 'Off-Set or Displaced Target Line' vs. 'Direct Target Line')(see 'All Putts Are Dead Straight')

Don't have much left in your 'Pre Shot Routine' once you have 'Seen the Line'. The image in your 'Inner Eye' will fade quite quickly so do not wait for it to happen. Pull the trigger and think 'Weight & Distance'. Once you have 'Seen the Line' your mind computer knows and remembers precisely where it is. 'TRUST AND PLAY WEIGHT'

Think positively! This putting is always about 'BALL - PIN' and thinking it into the hole. Visualize the bottom of the cup and 'NOTHING ELSE'.

Trust your putting swing and know you can hole it out, every time! Sounds a little 'BOLD and COCKY'? It is supposed to!
