FAIRWAYS, GREENS & PUTTS

Course Management

There are two ways to mess up a strike off the teeing ground ... 'Left & Right' or to the 'Low or High Energy Side Of The Target Line'. You can also be short or long ('Distance Control Challenged'), but 'Direction Control' is the primary problem causer. Short just means another stroke or a longer next club selection. Long has differing outcomes and ramifications. Simple scenarios!

"Cutting Out or Eliminating Half Of The Golf Course" is a very real focus by your '555 Team'. If you are a 'Fader or Slicer Of The Golf Ball' the worries are "Low Energy or Leaky Side Of The Target Line". So play that 'Ball Flight Shape'!

'Leaky Fade' being the case, one can start on the 'Low Energy Side Of The Tee Box' and direct the 'Ball Flight' towards the 'High Energy or Draw Side'. This ball shaping strategy actually functionally doubles the safe playable area to which you can launch or fire a ball with a 'Fade / Slice' tendency.

This 'Course Management' actually eliminates the troubles on the 'High Energy Side of the Fairway'. You will seldom go there.

'Playing Half Of The Course' is a really sound tactical plan of action which produces a very real advantage ... 'Lower Scores'.

Thus, the 'Driver or Big Ball' comes under control! (see 'Hitting Fairways') Good thing! Now all we have remaining are Green & Putts'.

Welcome to raw golf simplicity!
